MAN SHOT AS HE SITS IN CAR ON TYBURN RD.; CONDITION SERIOUS; SHOT GUN FIRED THROUGH CAR WINDOW

Howard Wilson, 19, Beaver Dam Road, Narrowly Misses Being Instantly Killed — Shooting Occurred Near Same Spot Where Woman Was Brutally Slashed Several Months Ago — Victim Says It Was Colored Man.

A Bristol Township man, Howard Wilson, 19, Beaver Dam Road, was shot and seriously injured early Saturday evening as he sat in his car on Tyburn Road, which runs through the Kings Farms, in Penn Valley, near Morrisville. The shooting, say police, occurred at about the same spot where a Bristol man, Joseph Tranotti, and his wife, a resident of Trenton, were parked when the two were held up and Mrs. Tranotti brutally slashed by a negro, on the evening of August 7th.

Corporal R. D. Evans and Private Theodore Jones of the Pennsylvania Motor Police of the Oxford Valley Barracks, along with Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo, are conducting a thorough search for a colored man. The man is described as being about 30 to 40 years of age, five feet and five inches tall, and weighing 120 to 140 pounds.

Wilson was shot through the left arm and the wound is described as an

"Reds" Lead "Whites" On Contest's Opening Night

The Epworth League of Bristol Methodist Church started a membership contest last evening which will end December 29th.

The membership of the league has been divided into two sides, the "Reds" and the "Whites." Irene Ranck is captain of the Whites, and Jack Ritter of the Reds.

The contest will be decided by points, such as 1/2 point if on time—6:45; 1/2 point for all present at 7:15; a visitor counts two points. After two Sundays, the visitor becomes contest member. Later these members will be taken in at a special meeting of the league. Points will be given to each side for these members. After New Year's, the losing side must treat the winning side.

The results of the first night are as follows:

Number present at meeting, 58; number on red side, 32; number on white side, 26. The red side received 57 points, and the white side, 39.

The committee running the contest consists of all members of the cabinet.

The program last evening was as follows: Song service, prayer, Miss Annie M. Heritage; saxophone solo, "Jesus, Thou Art Standing," Harold Coon; solo, "I Come to Thee," James Douglass. A lively discussion followed on the topic "The Best Use of the Sabbath," or the three R's, Reverence, Recreation, Rest. The leader was Miss Lucille Rogers. Miss Carolyn Betz and Miss Peggy Rathke acted as pianists.

The leader on November 10th will be Ella May Smith and on November 17th, Peggy Wildman.

The president of the League is Miss Charlotte Rathke and Miss Dorothy Ritter has charge of the devotional services.

Held Up and Robbed

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Edward White, attendant of a gasoline station at Roosevelt Boulevard and Whitaker avenue, was held up and robbed of $438 today by two gunmen who fled in an automobile. With pistols trained on his back, White was forced to open the company's safe.

Three British Vessels Sunk

Berlin, Nov. 4.—German submarines and bombers sank three large British auxiliary cruisers and an armed merchantman and damaged one destroyer, two merchant vessels, and a naval patrol boat.

Plane Reported Missing

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—A United Airlines plane, carrying seven passengers and a crew of three, was reported missing today by the company's San Francisco office. The plane left Oakland Airport at 9:30 p. m. last night, stopped at San Francisco and later stopped at Sacramento, Reno, and Elko, Nev., but failed to report at Salt Lake City Airport.

Fight Bayonet Duels

Budapest, Nov. 4.—Fighting amid the snow-capped mountain peaks of Northern Greece developed into fierce bayonet duels and pot-shots by snipers in ambush today as a heavy snowstorm blanketed the battle area, rendering large-scale operations extremely difficult. Reports to Budapest said that Italian Alpine troops have established contact with Greek groups in the mountain country.

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 4.—The marriage license business for Bucks County fell 116 short during the month of October. The total of licenses granted last month was 150, as against 266 in October of 1939.

So far this year a total of 1949 licenses have been granted, but it is almost a certainty that the 2000 mark will be passed before December 1st. November's business last year produced a "bumper crop," with a total of 228 licenses issued. Clerks in the marriage licenses bureau feel sure that the 228-mark will not be reached this morning, but they are looking forward to at least one-half that many licenses in November.

All this draft routine and talk about war will not increase the number of marriages to any great degree. Those who contemplated marriage to evade

VOTE FOR WILLKIE!

In an ever-swelling crescendo of enthusiasm for Wendell L. Willkie—enthusiasm that has reached its peak on the eve of the election—the Presidential campaign of 1940 now closes and the decision rests in the hands of the voters.

A decision which will have more fateful effect on the history of the Republic than any ever registered at the polls by the American electorate.

There are many issues at stake, but none transcends in importance the threat to representative republican government contained in the Roosevelt bid for a third term in the White House. Should this plot succeed at the polls, it would signalize the substitution of one-man reign for Constitutional government in the United States.

All citizens, when voting for President, should keep in mind the fact that, until now, the government of the United States has not consisted of the President solely.

Wendell Willkie's pledge must be recognized as among his major declarations, that, if he is elected he will call to serve with him "the ablest men who can be found." "This can be done," he stated, "because we know who the ablest men are, and have given no pledges anywhere to anyone for political purposes."

President Roosevelt called into his cabinet, before his third term nomination at Chicago, two Republicans — after Alfred M. Landon had turned down a bid—Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox. But this was obviously a political move, designed to bolster his third term drive.

They serve at the President's pleasure; if elected, he will form a new administration in January. Nothing has come from him during the Presidential campaign defining his intentions, in event he succeeds in grabbing a third term, in this highly important respect.

His one definite step was his action in forcing the nomination of Henry A. Wallace for Vice President onto the unwilling Chicago convention, signifying that if he is President for another four years he would make the government more completely New Deal throughout than at any time in the past.

Is the nation to continue with Madame Perkins as Secretary of Labor? As Secretary of the Interior, is Harold Ickes to go on preaching and fomenting class hates? Since each man is 78 years old, the Supreme Court seats held by Chief Justice Hughes and Justice McReynolds seem likely to fall vacant before the end of 1944. Under Roosevelt again, may appointments to the High Court which the Bar and Nation can approve be expected?

Preeminently, the character of the next President's appointments will be an essential in securing public confidence in the government, and public unity in its support, during the critical years ahead. Mr. Willkie can be expected to make appointments that will win public confidence. Mr. Roosevelt, should he succeed in his third term attempt, would be unable to do so even had he the desire. The type of man needed distrusts Roosevelt and would not want to serve under him.

It is a sobering thought that all over the world in these recent years people have been fighting and dying for the right Americans will exercise tomorrow. Liberty, in fundamental terms, means nothing other than self-government.

It means a great deal more besides, of course, such as equality before the law and freedom to speak and worship as

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Thought of Defeat

New York, Nov. 2. NO one believing one month ago that this Presidential campaign would sink to the low political level it has reached in its final week. The explanation, of course, is that instead of being the runaway race which the third terms had expected, and to which Mr. Roosevelt had become accustomed, it apparently is so close that the most experienced men of politics are uncertain about the outcome.

AND the responsibility for the character of the campaign is as clear as the explanation. It rests squarely upon those who are directing the third-term candidacy. From that side have come the eggs, vegetables and other missiles thrown at Mr. Willkie and his

Antonio Rizzo, Former Bristolian, Dies Saturday

Antonio Rizzo, husband of Elizabeth Cassiana Rizzo, died in Philadelphia on Saturday. A former resident of Bristol, Mr. Rizzo had been ill but a short time. He left Bristol 12 years ago to make his home in Philadelphia. While located here he operated a grocery store on Lafayette street.

The deceased leaves his wife, seven daughters and four sons.

The funeral tomorrow at nine from his late home, 7128 State Road, Tacony, will be followed at 10 o'clock by services in Italian Pentecostal Church, Tacony. Interment will be in Bristol Cemetery, with Galzerano in charge.

FIRE RUINS ROOM IN HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

Headquarters of Coach
Campion Are Guttered by

GRID SUITS DAMAGED

Fire yesterday morning threatened the Bristol high school building when flames were discovered in the room of the boys' coach, Thomas Campion, on the ground floor of the building, adjacent to the main auditorium.

The room was gutted and practically all of the contents destroyed, including considerable football equipment.

The blaze was discovered by William E. Doan, son of William H. Doan, maintenance engineer for the schools.

Doan and his father went to the building yesterday morning at about 10:30 o'clock, and as they were leaving through a rear door, the younger Doan noticed smoke coming from one of the windows. Doan and his father returned to investigate and opening the door of the room used as headquarters by Coach Campion found it a roaring mass of flames. The two men extinguished the blaze with hand extinguishers, using the entire contents of four extinguishers.

Bristol Consolidated firemen were called and went to the scene where they remained until the walls and partitions had cooled off. The smoke broke

Married Guardsmen Get Honorable Discharges

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 4.—Anti-Postal Federal mobilization, about 15 National Guardsmen, all married, members of Doylestown's Company D, 11th Infantry, have been given honorable discharges and dropped from the roster, according to an order from Regimental Headquarters of the United States War Department.

Lieutenant William F. Polk said today the married Guardsmen were mostly non-commissioned officers, having served from four to seven years. It is expected that the married Guardsmen will be taken back after the National Guard units revert to State control and the Guardsmen will have the chance to re-enlist.

In order to get a year's service the National Guard units are moving to various Federal mobilization which may take place the second week in January. Company D is a machine gun unit and is looked upon as one of the crack outfits of the 11th. Machine guns possessed by the company brings this unit up to war-time strength.

All absences in the ranks have been made up out of a reserve list. The regular Tuesday state health clinics at the community house, Dorance street, have been postponed until Wednesday this week due to the election holiday. Chest clinic will be from three to four, and venereal control from five to six.

REPUBLICANS EXPECT 10,000 MAJORITY IN BUCKS TOMORROW

Most Active Political Campaign in Years Comes To a Close Today

DEMOCRATS INACTIVE

Willkie - for - President Clubs Have Held Meetings Almost Every Night for Month

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 4.—Wendell L. Willkie by a plurality of close to 10,000 is practically assured Republican ranks by Bucks county voters tomorrow. This is a conservative estimate coming from veterans of the Republican party as well as a few leaders of the Democratic party.

The most active political campaign in years in the history of a county, that has been a Republican stronghold for a long time, has been completed. This has been true in Republican circles but just the opposite in Democratic circles.

The Willkie-for-President clubs of Bucks county have held meetings nightly for the past 30 days. Democratic activity has been confined to a few "whispering" campaigns and small groups gathering wherever W. P. A. workers are in the majority.

The regular Republican organization has received a lot of assistance in this campaign. Never in the history of the county have so many independent votes been assured Willkie, in addition to several hundred prominent Democrats who are voting for Willkie.

Latest registration figures in Bucks county show 35,285 Republicans; 17,857 Democrats; and 2,934 No Party, compared to a year ago in October when the Republicans had 32,249; Democrats, 18,031; No Party, 1,753.

The entire Republican ticket will carry Bucks county by a large plurality, but Willkie will run ahead of other members of the ticket because of the

Two Men Hurt As Cars Crash at Hellings Corner

Two men were injured at about one o'clock yesterday morning when two cars crashed at Durham Road, Hellings Corner. Both of the injured were treated at the Harriman Hospital, here. James Sposto, owner of one of the cars which was driven by Dominick Crapella, also of Scranton, was traveling on the Durham Road toward Bristol when another car operated by William Thompson, Toms River, N. J., crossed the Durham Road.

Crapella was injured about the head, forehead, nose and both hands and sustained other injuries.

Sposto was injured about the forehead, right arm and elbow. Both men left the hospital yesterday.

Thompson was not injured.

Corporal William F. Herman Transferred To Bethlehem

Corporal William F. Herman, who is in charge of the Doylestown substation of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, has been transferred to Troop D Headquarters in Bethlehem, effective today.

Corporal Herman, who was a member of the Doylestown barracks of the Pennsylvania State Police and was stationed in the County Seat when the State Police and State Highway Patrol merger took place, has been engaged in Doylestown in police work for the Commonwealth for the past four and one-half years.

Recognized throughout the Pennsylvania Motor Police as one of the most efficient, capable and co-operative officers, Corporal Herman leaves Doylestown with a fine record in the investigation of crimes committed in Bucks county.

While located at Doylestown, numerous "rookies," particularly those who finished their first training course under the Pennsylvania Motor Police set-up, began their careers as Motor Policemen under Corporal Herman. All have tremendous admiration for the training they received under him.

Corporal Herman, while located at Doylestown, has perfected a system of checking up on and identifying criminals which has made his filing system one of the utmost efficiency and accuracy. During this residence Corporal and Mrs. Herman identified themselves with the civic, social and educational life of the County Seat.

Corporal Earl Pepple, of Bethlehem, has been transferred to Doylestown, taking charge of the sub-station today.

ADDING A STAR

If a kindly and enlightened king and queen of Hawaii had not gone to England and died of the measles the course of history in that lovely but troubled paradise of the Pacific might not have culminated in its becoming a territory of the United States.

Since things happened as they did if now comes about that when most Americans are all hot and bothered over a Presidential election the people of Hawaii will be voting on Tuesday to decide whether they want their country to become the forty-ninth state of the Union, thus adding a new star to Old Glory and at least three votes to the electoral college.

Consummation of the plan to create the first state outside the continental United States would be good news for the flag makers.

James H. Blount, who was sent to the Sandwich Islands—as Hawaii was then known—in March, 1893, as "commissioner paramount" by President Cleveland, to study and report on conditions arising after Queen Liliuokalani had been deposed and her people wanted to be annexed to the United States, had been a member of Congress from Georgia for twenty years.

There was much criticism of the broad powers conferred on the man whom his critics called "Paramount Blount."

But Judge Blount's report paved the way for the annexation of Hawaii as a territory and now the land of the sugar cane, the pineapple and the lei is on the way to become a full-fledged state, if the islanders and Congress agree.

FOR CYCLING SAFETY

Pupils of a Chicago high school have introduced a novel application of the motor vehicle inspection idea. They periodically submit their bicycles for tests of brakes, lights, tires and other parts. Defects must be remedied in order to gain official approval.

Now this may seem, on first thought, like a silly kind of adolescent initiation. But the scheme attains real seriousness of purpose when a glance is taken at a recent report of the National Safety Council to the effect that there were 700 deaths and 35,000 cycling accidents in the United States in twelve months.

It is no doubt the case that control of a bicycle is more easily maintained when the vehicle is in good running order. And this leads to the conclusion that the Chicago high school inspection arrangement reflects considerable common sense.

Trotter's brain was one of the largest on record, weighing three and one-half pounds, doctors who conducted the autopsy report. This made it easier for the pickax to find its mark.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Feb. 6, 1879. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

HULMEVILLE—Hon. Richard Watson, of Doylestown, delivered a very interesting lecture last Friday evening, in Johnson's Hall, to a large and appreciative audience of "Travels in the Old Country," describing at length the principal points of interest in England, Ireland and Scotland, as seen by him. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

On Saturday morning, Hazel Booz, who for so long we have been used to see with other carter at the steamboat landings, or the railroad depot, went to his stable to get some hay for his horse, and while there fell dead. When found he still had the hay fork in his hand. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of death by an attack of apoplexy.

Miss Ella M. Turner, one of the teachers at the new school, has been seriously ill for the past week, and Mrs. Stradling, wife of Prof. Stradling, who formerly taught school in Morrisville, has been engaged to take charge of the school until the regular teacher is again able to resume her duties.

Rev. Mr. Wherry, returned missionary from India, where he has been for about ten years, delivered an interesting lecture, in the Presbyterian Church last evening, concerning his work in India and missionary work there.

At the meeting of the Republican ward conventions next Thursday evening each ward will choose 15 delegates to the borough convention, and select three persons to serve upon the executive committee.

Although there does not seem to be much gold in circulation in our borough there was quite a sprinkling of gold coins paid in at the Building Association which met on Monday evening.

The members of council who retire this Spring, unless they shall be re-elected, are: Charles W. Peirce, Jr., S. S. Rue, W. H. Booz, Thomas B. Harkins and Charles York.

After the first of April, the meeting of H. Clay Beatty Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will be held semi-monthly, on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

The room where the sessions of the Institute are held was early crowded on Tuesday evening. Promptly on time, the president called the meeting to order, and the exercises began with piano duet, Rossini's "Tancred" by Mrs. Arthur Collins and Miss Woolston. Edgar A. Poe was the subject of a biographical sketch by Miss Lizzie Kinsey, which was read by the secretary; a vocal solo by Mrs. D. Weaver, who sang as a substitute for Mrs. William Fine, came next, was followed by an essay upon "The Functions of Government" by Charles E. Scheide. Mrs. Joshua Peirce gave a piano solo. At the close of the entertainment a vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Peirce for the pleasure he had given by his lecture.

The Republican ward meetings will be held next Thursday evening. A full attendance of members of the party should be had. The preliminary meetings are often as important and decisive as an election. . . . While we there is a meanness and bitterness about the fight which makes it different from any that has occurred in a very long time. Nor is it hard to see the reason. Aside from the fact that instead of the setups against whom Mr. Roosevelt had previously run, and another which he expected to oppose him this time, his opponent turned out to be a formidable man who somehow has gotten his case across to the people—aside from that, there is the fact that the circumstances of this third-term attempt would make the defeat of the third-term candidate no ordinary defeat. Quite clearly, it would be far more devastating and humiliating than any normal defeat for any normal candidacy.

IT is easy to understand that to such a man as Mr. Roosevelt the thought of such a defeat must be nearly unbearable. It must be particularly unbearable when the thought is forced on him after weeks of a confidence so supreme that he deemed it unnecessary to solicit the votes of the people or recognize that anyone was running against him. Until a short time ago that was the feeling of the President and of his journalistic and political aides and spokesmen. Some of them actually were suggesting that Mr. Willkie save his strength and withdraw from what they characterized as a "hopeless fight." Apparently the idea that he could be defeated did not enter Mr. Roosevelt's mind until about the middle of October.

BUT it has been there since then, and it certainly is there now. It has forced him into a frantic last-minute campaign and it has stimulated his managers to what seem the excesses of scared and desperate men. Even if Mr. Roosevelt wins, it will be at the cost of dignity and pride. If, now, he should be elected, it will not be as a "drafted" candidate, yielding to the "irresistible demand of the people," but as a President who used the full weight of a gigantic Federal machine and descended to the lower depths of demagoguery to hold on to his job against the will of the majority of unsoldiered, non-jobholding voters. It is a prospect no thoughtful man could contemplate with equanimity.

THERE are men who would not want to be elected that way. Yet Mr. Roosevelt, by "drafting" himself for a third nomination, has gotten into a position where defeat would be so personally humiliating that there seems little he would not do to avert it. Once having made the third-term gamble, against which he was solemnly warned by some of his closest friends; once having defied the oldest of American political traditions and rejected as disloyal those who cautioned him that public feeling on the subject was deep and strong—once having done those things, it was inevitable that, if defeat threatened, he would be compelled to go the limit to win. And that is what he has done.

BECAUSE defeat in this fight would mean that instead of going out of office popular, acclaimed, with prestige high and record approved, he would go out discredited and repudiated, rebuked by the people for his presumption. It would mean that he had grossly overestimated himself as he had underestimated the people. It would mean that, just as he had guessed wrong about the way they felt concerning the Supreme Court, he had guessed just as wrong concerning the way they feel on third terms. It would mean that the people had seen through the whole false pretense of the "draft" campaign. It would be the sort of rebuke to embitter the rest of his days, and its sting would be with him to the end. Considering these things, it is not surprising that the fear of defeat makes him desperate—and that his managers verge on panic.

Republicans Expect 10,000 Majority in Bucks Tomorrow

large independent and Democratic vote expected.
For Representative in Congress in the Bucks-Lehigh district, Congressmen Charles L. Gerlach, of Allentown, present incumbent, is quite sure of another term and election over the Democratic candidate, Henry V. Scheiwer, of Allentown, Democrat.

For Representative in the General Assembly from Bucks county, Wilson L. Yeakel, Morrisville, and Thomas B. Stockham, Perkasie, are sure of election for another term as Republicans. Both Yeakel and Stockham have played an important part in the Willkie campaign in Bucks.

Doylestown is going to vote on Sunday movies for the second time. The last time the issue came up, Sunday movies lost by a small margin. This year, indications point to a victory for the movie interests, although the clergymen of Doylestown have conducted an advertising campaign against the issue, with all churches against movies but two.

Perkasie Borough is going to vote on a $150,000 bond issue for improvement to the municipal electric light plant. No other local contests are scheduled in Bucks this year.

The estimated increase in the Republican plurality for Willkie in Bucks is due partly to the fact that such outstanding and prominent life-long Democrats as Thomas Ross, John Ross and Colonel George Ross, attorneys of this place, have been campaigning against President Roosevelt and for Willkie.

The Democratic candidates for State Assembly are Ernest Seifert, New Britain, and James Fairweather, Langhorne.

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

SYNOPSIS

Two misfortunes have befallen the otherwise happy Osborne family within twenty-four hours. First, his head, Stephen, age 50, lost his job; then, the next morning, a telegram from Aunt Octavia announces the visit that day of this rich but decidedly unpopular relative. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne urge their five children "to be nice to her." Dorothy, 23; Ann, 19; Michael, 17; Mary, 14; and Peter, 12, agree to "be like cats around a saucer of cream." The Osbornes have a veteran servant, Hannah Gale, and a visitor, "Uncle" Simon, elderly bohemian and author of comic. When he learns of Octavia's coming, he decides to leave after telling Ann what a terror her aunt is. . . . On arrival with her elderly maid, Miss Mimms, Octavia starts a fire of criticism which reaches a climax when Mrs. Osborne tells her that Stephen has lost his job. His wife explains:

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"You mustn't blame Stephen. It isn't his fault. His firm was merged with two others and that meant the dismissal of certain employees. Stephen is one of the unlucky ones."

"That's all nonsense, my dear Edith. When firms reorganize they do not discharge valued employees. I know enough about business to realize that. If Stephen has been discharged after twenty-four years with his firm, his services cannot have been of any great value to it."

"I admit that he has never been suited to his work. After all, he was not trained for business; he was pitchedforked into it when he married me. He has worked hard, uncomplainingly, all these years. That surely counts for something."

"He is a failure. Say what you will, that's what it comes to. Do you think I don't know my own brother? His nature is inherently weak."

"He isn't hard, I agree."

"In the eyes of the world he's a failure," Octavia returned.

"The world! What the world thinks of a man doesn't matter. It's the verdict of his family that counts."

"What does he propose to do? He won't find another position in a hurry."

"No," said Edith wearily, "I'm afraid he won't. At fifty, it isn't easy to make a fresh start. Few employers nowadays will even consider a middle-aged man."

"I presume you have saved?"

"How could we?"

"Anyone can save who wants to. It is simply a matter of cutting your coat according to your cloth. If you had been prepared to do without—"

"Have you any idea of the things we have been forced to do without? I can count on my fingers the number of theatres Stephen and I have been to since our marriage. I make my own clothes and most of the girls' frocks. Stephen has to make a suit last three years and an overcoat five. He rations his tobacco and walks quite long distances to save bus fares."

"You have a radio," snapped Miss Osborne almost as accusingly as though it were a pearl necklace.

"Michael made it. He earned the money for the parts by repairing other people's sets."

"Michael has a car—surely an unwarrantable extravagance for a boy his age!"

"You should have seen it when he first got it. It had been rusting away on a vacant lot for nearly two years and the owner gave it to him to get rid of it. He worked with it for weeks before he made it run. He earns the money for gas and oil by doing odd jobs on Doctor Fleming's car."

"Well, I must say you live extremely well for people who cannot save."

"We've done our best to bring up our children decently, if that's what you mean."

"Your three elder children ought to be earning their own livings."

"We want Michael to be a doctor; and neither Dorothy nor Ann would be happy in offices."

"Happy! I do not consider it important for young people to be happy. You are giving them ideas far beyond any station in life their father can offer them. You keep a far more elaborate house than many of my friends whose incomes are considerably larger than Stephen's."

"You defy me and scorn my judgment when it suits you, but you come running to me for help when the shoe pinches," said Octavia.

"You are simply accusing me of being a good manager."

"Good manager or not, a nice mess you and Stephen have made of your lives. Jobless at fifty, without a penny saved! How do you propose to live?"

"Well, . . ." Edith took the bit between her teeth. "We hoped that you—"

"You hoped that I—I! Go on, pray. What did you expect of me?"

"You have so much, Octavia. It would mean nothing to you to let Stephen have enough to carry on with until he gets on his feet again."

"So"—all the bottled-up bitterness of twenty-four years was in that one word. "You defy me and scorn my judgement when it suits you, but you come running to me for help when the shoe pinches. I knew you two would never make a success of life—I knew it—but neither of you would listen to me. Oh, no! You knew better. You could manage without me and my money—or so you thought. But you can't manage without me and my money now. Do you suppose I haven't known that this would come?"

"I assure you neither Stephen nor I would ask you for a penny if we had only ourselves to consider. If we are pocketing our pride it is for the sake of our children."

"Your children! What right have you to have children you can't support?"

"But I had not intended to mention it but, after all, Stephen has a strong moral claim on you."

"Indeed! I don't recognize it."

"You are hard, Octavia, bitter, unforgiving. Well, I suppose there is no more to be said."

"On the contrary, my dear Edith, there remains a great deal to be said. But I prefer to say it later, after I have given the matter the fullest possible consideration."

Mealtimes in the Osborne house.

hold were usually festive occasions with a great deal of airy chatter, but lunch on the day of Octavia Osborne's arrival was gloomy. It was as though the family skeleton had been brought from its closet and seated at the table. Stephen tried to keep the talk alive but it languished and died in spite of him.

Hannah had exerted herself over the meal, but no one had much of an appetite. Waiting on table, Hannah removed each half-eaten course as though it were a personal insult. She trod more heavily on the floor every time she entered the room. It was really a wonder that the scorching gaze she directed at Octavia did not burn through the starched garments and blister her stiff back.

Towards the end of the meal, Octavia took some folded piece of paper from her handbag and, adjusting her nose-glasses, shot an arresting glance round the table.

"I have something to say to which I want you all to listen carefully. It is concerned with the—suppose one would say—the misfortune which has befallen your father."

Two Who Soon Will Wed Are Honored at Newportville

NEWPORTVILLE, Nov. 4.—A shower was arranged for Miss Dorothy Gehrmann and William Timson by members of the Cheerful Workers and the Y. P. C. U., in Newportville Church basement, Friday evening.

After being greeted with shouts of "surprise," the couple were then conducted to the platform where a table laden with packages awaited them.

The group later sat down to tables tastefully decorated in pink and white and bouquets of chrysanthemums. Favors were white baskets adorned with silver bells. A large cake topped with a bride and groom graced the center table. Fred Kohler, Sr., was master of ceremonies.

The heads of the various organizations, each in turn, extended best wishes to the two, who will be married November 23rd in Oakhurst Chapel.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cotshott, Mr. and Mrs. George Enny, Mr. and Mrs. W. Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. R. Perpete, Mr. and Mrs. F. Kohler, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. Gehrmann, Mr. and Mrs. H. Backhouse, Mrs. A. Wright, Mrs. H. Brambley, Mrs. C. Everett, Mrs. C. Ingraham, Mrs. M. Mattocks, Mrs. F. Wimmersberger, Mrs. R. Given, Mr. and Mrs. F. Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

God of all power and might, we commend our nation to the guidance of Thy wisdom, to the keeping of Thy love. Raise up, O God, politicians who will fear Thee and will work Thy work and do Thy will. Convict our citizens with a due sense of their responsibility in the use of their franchise. In these cataclysmic days, let us lose our partisanship in patriotism.

Grant that the constituency of the Church catholic may heed the voice of its prophets as these great churchmen of all denominations urge the support of our constitutional tradition now threatened by the fallacious theory of the "indispensable man."

Save our land from those who are willing to sacrifice all sacred heritage for power, privilege or personal gain. Because our form of government was set up by men of intense religious convictions who sought freedom to worship according to their own consciences, and because of the faith that every human being, as a child of God, has inalienable rights that no earthly power may invade, therefore we believe that our Constitution, the foundation-stone of our democracy is the highest expression of this sacredness of human life.

Because we face a threat to American democracy, when for the first time a man seeks to perpetuate himself and a vast political machine, and because religion gave birth to democracy and religion depends upon democracy for its strength in the future, therefore, O God, we pray Thy blessing on our national election that they who are pledged to thwart every totalitarian trend may have glorious victory. Amen.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Rickert, Oxford Valley, have moved to an apartment on Jefferson avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lees, who resided on East Circle, moved to Newportville, last week.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

By all standards of measurement "Boom Town," which opened yesterday at the Grand Theatre, is super entertainment—if not the best of this or any other year.

For a cast it boasts four stars—Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr. The supporting cast includes Frank Morgan, Lionel Atwill, Chill Wills, Marion Martin, Minna Gombell, a baby and a dog.

If an audience wants excitement, there are spine-tingling fights, an amazing scene of a blazing oil well being whiffed out with TNT, gushes which shoot derricks high into the air, Gable riding a bucking mule and the thrilling drama of hunting for oil.

RITZ THEATRE

To a wealth of varying titles ranging from "best dressed woman" to "most beautiful siren," Kay Francis has now added the title of "western heroine."

The brunette star portrays the first "outdoor" role of her distinguished career in Universal's new frontier action epic, "When the Daltons Rode," now at the Ritz Theatre.

through the baseboard in room 116 just above the room which was afire.

Fire Chief Clifford Hagerman investigated and learned that on Saturday electricians were working in the building, all day. The current was turned off until after five o'clock Saturday afternoon. It is presumed that during the time that the electricians were at work someone went into the coaches' room where the football paraphernalia was kept. The lights may have been turned on and not getting any light due to the main current being off, other lights were tried including a sun-lamp. The person trying the lights then may have forgotten to turn off the sun-lamp. If this was the case the sun-lamp burned all Saturday night, and Sunday morning, as the electricians turned on the current at 5:30 Saturday afternoon.

Chief Hagerman says that the rays from the sun-lamp directed on one spot for such a length of time, would have created sufficient heat to cause the fire.

REPLETE WITH THRILLS

Purcell Starts Winner With First Tally; Ashton
Owl Ace

By Jack W. Gill

A Bensalem team that was sluggish during the first half suddenly caught fire in the closing minutes of a football game and as a result they almost salvaged a sinking ship. But it all came too late and was combined with a twist of circumstances. Morrisville, on the basis of a last quarter tally by Bud McAllister, took the game by a 13 to 7 count and continued rolling on toward the conference title.

Battering Bob Purcell stuck Morrisville in the lead in the opening quarter when he sunk through the left side of the Bensalem line for a 30 yard touchdown jaunt.

Later, in the last chapter, Bud McAllister took a short side lateral behind the line of scrimmage and galloped 25 yards for a spine tingling score. The run was an individual feat that saw McAllister snake hip and glide his way with beautiful broken field running the entire distance.

But fireworks were to come later in this hysterical last quarter. Behind, almost hopelessly out of the game, Bensalem came back fighting and with steady Henry Killian standing back pitching passes, they surprised Morrisville and completely swept the winners off their feet.

Immediately following McAllister's picture run, Bobby Scarborough, back in play for the first time in a major ruse this season, took the kickoff on a nice run from the Owls 10 yard line to the 35. Killian, on the next play, stepped away back and shot a zooming long pass to Gene Ashton, who caught the heave on the run, slipped, almost fell to the ground, but regained his composure enough to carry on his task. Nabbing it on the forty, he sped the remaining yardage with Bulldogs in hot pursuit.

Faking from a try for extra point boot formation, this same Killian hit Dick Colbert with another toss in the end zone to make the count read: Morrisville, 13; Bensalem, 7.

Six minutes remained to be played in the ball game. Spectators, rather awed by the complete thoroughness and quickness of Bensalem's convincing thrust, passed it on as one of those last ditch long aerial scores.

They were wrong. This big Blue team had suddenly caught the triumphant urge. The line particularly took the touchdown injection to heart. Charging their way forward in a manner they had not displayed previously during the afternoon, they repulsed three straight running plays after the kick-off deep in Morrisville's territory. Bob Purcell was forced to punt from his own 30 yard marker. Killian ran it back to the 40.

Then, as the sun began to sink and the fans began to chant things up, this boy Killian calmly, unruffled and steady, started pitching pass after pass for short gains. Completely cracking Morrisville wide open, eligible receivers shook loose often. All of Killian's shots hit their mark. Those that were incomplete were not due to wildness, but were batted down by Blue and Gold defenders.

From the 40 yard line it was Killian to Scarborough to the 45. Next, one hit the owls and fell into the arms of Colbert on the Morrisville 45. Not mixing them up with running plays, the Owls were desperately trying to win the game with this type of play. Once again the boy in the blue suit slid far back and threw. This time Dick Mossbrook gathered the leather in and went to the 35 yard line.

All this time the Bulldogs were employing a 5-3-2-1 set up. Still the Owls choose to pass instead of trying to maul up a reduced forward wall.

And still they kept clicking. Drawing the wings back wide on these many tosses to the sidelines, Killian next shot one down the middle to Mossbrook again that was good to the Morrisville 30.

Here was a ball game hopelessly lost in the last period, 13 to 0, twisting into a flicker of success and later a fray of entirely different complexion all in the short duration of about eight minutes.

Bensalem was on the move and Morrisville stood helpless before the wizardry of Killian's passing, the fleetness of Mossbrook, Ashton and Colbert, and the determined onward charge of a highly inspired and aroused line.

The next play proved to be the incident that plucked the feathers from the weary Owl. Letting another pitch fly to Ashton far across the gridiron, big Beadle intercepted and the drive from obscurity to perhaps a district championship rating had met its Waterloo.

salem play went amiss and the game ended.

There was little to choose between these two aggregations. The holding play episode was a bitter pill to swallow, yet such has been the case often in important grid games. Last year the Owls met the same type of fate on a pass interference ruling.

Fumbles proved disastrous to the Bensalem cause often. The ball was slippery as was the field, and this coupled with the fact that the Dogs were hitting hard, led to several muffs.

Replete with thrills from start to finish, a hundred happenings could hardly dull the steady staccato of completed passes that flew from Killian to Mossbrook, Ashton and Colbert. Never was "Heavin' Hank" harried. All the receivers held tight. It was a last quarter portrait that no coach could paint.

Morrisville's Bob Purcell hit the Owl line during the first three quarters with outstanding success. Bobby Keys, a mere mite of a chap, astounded with some excellent offensive blocking, Morrisville's adept blocking, decidedly hot stuff a week ago against Conshohock, was not up to par Saturday.

For the Owls, Gene Ashton played a fine ball game defensively as well as offensively at end. Ted Devoe, a guard, was a lineman of note. George Carter, did plenty of blocking and once more took part in many a defensive pile up. Bob Scarborough, all conference back last season, came back into the game after being out with a knee injury and once more gave spots of his elusiveness.

DIAMOND GETS GAME AFTER DECISION DISPUTE

ANDALUSIA, Nov. 4.—Refusing to abide by the decision of the officials, Coach Charlie Carter, of the South Langhorne Aces, called his team off the field here yesterday and refused to continue the game. After giving Langhorne two minutes to come on the field, Referee Egeuer awarded the game to Diamond. At the time of the dispute, Diamond was leading 6-0.

The dispute occurred shortly after the second period had begun. South Langhorne was in possession of the ball on Diamond's 35 yard line. The Aces' quarterback on fourth down elected to throw a pass. This was heaved to the Diamond two yard line. McFarland, Diamond's safety player, put up his hands to catch the ball and then dropped it. The officials ruled the pass incomplete. Coach Carter immediately ran on the field and protested, claiming that McFarland had held the ball long enough to declare the pass intercepted, giving Diamond possession of the ball on their own two yard line.

Referee Egeuer immediately penalized Carter 15 yards for running on the field without permission and it was then that Carter motioned for his players to leave the field. After waiting two minutes, the officials left the field. The arguing continued between players and fans for about one-half hour afterwards but nothing was settled.

BRISTOL A. A. DEFEATS FRANKFORD BY 13 TO 0

Playing before a large crowd yesterday the Bristol A. A. team finally got started in the second period when Dugan, the A. A. plunging halfback tore through the Frankford A. A. team to score the A. A. first touchdown, making the score 6 to 0. The ball sawawed up and down the field for the rest of the first half, but in the third period Dugan shot a long pass to Plebana, who leaped high in the air and pulled down the ball on the Frankford five-yard line, going over with a Philadelphia player hanging on to him, making the score 12 to 0.

Then Dugan galloped over for the extra point, final score 13 to 0.

The feature of the game were the line play of the A. A. team which held the Frankford team to two first downs. Dugan, Grimes, Dougherty, Orazi, Breslin, McGovern, played great ball in the backfield. The A. A. team will play at home again next Sunday. The Club will be given out late.

FALLS ALUMNI TIES WHITE HORSE, 6 TO 6

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 4.—A strong second-half offensive drive earned the Falls Township Alumni eleven a 6-6 deadlock with the White Horse A. A. yesterday afternoon on Island field before the largest crowd of the season, estimated at 800 fans.

For the first half of the tilt the Jersey club outplayed the Falls boys and were leading 6-0 at the rest period. They had driven the charges of DeRisi and Doheny back on several occasions and threatened to score on two other occasions.

double what they will be at any other time during the contest.
After the post Saturday evening count, James Howard Kirk again took the lead from George Foerst, who dropped to fourth. Wayne Shemeley moved into the second place and Anita Louise Jamieson gained the third position. Others increasing the standing on the Honor Roll include Angelina Pecora, Robert Keller, Raymond Tison, Patricia Earnest and Frank Flum.
The next count is Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Extra votes are being offered for this count on both subscriptions and coupons. This Wednesday count is very important because it will show the line-up of the contestants going into the final few days of the high vote period. The Wednesday vote bonus offers are the last of the first period of the contest.

Marriage Licenses Drop During October

the draft were among the applicants of several months ago, not last month. Many young men have secured steady jobs in munitions plants and in airplane factories.

Approximately 80 per cent of the licenses issued in October went to non-residents of Bucks county. There were 14 applicants who had been divorced, in the list of 200 men and women who made up the 150 applications. Philadelphia furnished the largest number of non-resident applicants, while Trenton and other Jersey sections made up a portion of the balance. Applicants during the month of October came from nine states.

October was no different than any other month and as a result, justices of the peace married more than 80 per cent of the couples who were granted licenses.

Man Shot As He Sits in Car on Tyburn Rd.; Condition Serious

"explosive wound" from a shot gun fired at close range.

The gun was fired directly through the window of the left front door of a two-door sedan. A clear-cut hole was cut through the ventilator of the door, and it is considered a miracle that Wilson escaped being instantly killed.

Wilson, although painfully wounded, drove to the Harriman Hospital here and walked into the institution with his left arm limp at his side.

Wilson told the authorities that he was sitting in the parked car with a girl companion when a negro walked up to the left side of the machine and commanded that the door be opened. Wilson states that he stepped on the starter when the negro placed a shot gun against the window of the car door and fired.
Dr. George T. Fox, at the Harriman Hospital, describes the wound as being "a serious one." Quantities of slugs and shot were removed from the arm. Pennsylvania State Motor Police who hurried to the scene of the shooting, immediately communicated with Hamilton Township police of New Jersey, and asked that the Duck Island territory be patrolled in case the Negro had attempted to escape to the Jersey side of the Delaware by boat.

Wilson said that he immediately suspected that something was wrong when he saw the negro and started his car in an effort to get away as quickly as possible. Before he could get the car into motion, the negro fired a shell from a shotgun through the window at close range, shattering Wilson's arm.

The wounded youth told Dr. Fox that he had a good view of his assailant, describing him as being five feet, four inches in height, weighing about 140 pounds, and wearing a cap and shabby clothing.

Police, searching about for clues, thought that the negro might have been the same one who slashed Mrs. Tranotti as she sat in a parked automobile with her husband on Tyburn Road in Morrisville, on August 7th.

"In an unusual case like this," a State officer said, "we have to take every clue into consideration. It is very possible that the same man might have committed both crimes."

State motor police, aided by Bucks county authorities, carefully searched the neighborhood where the shooting occurred and placed guards at strategic intervals on the Bristol Pike and neighboring roads.

Dr. Fox, after administering first aid, said that Wilson's condition was critical, describing the wound as "terrific." The gun had been fired at such short range, he said, that the wadding of the shell had been fired into the wound.

Wilson's condition today remained about the same, it was stated at the hospital.

STEPS INTO DRAFT ROLE

BARNSTABLE, Mass.—(INS)—Clarence M. Chase apparently has a life job in connection with draft registrations. Chase was town clerk in 1917 and had charge of draft registrations at that time. He has served as town clerk continuously since and assumed charge of the 1940 selective service draft.

The two youths were sailing a 16-foot boat of the Comet type in a strong wind and when a particularly severe puff of wind hit the craft it tipped over. Both boys are good swimmers and did not consider themselves in any particular danger.

Dodds is vice commodore of the Bristol Sailing Club and is very familiar with the river.

Two Rescued From River When Sailboat Upsets

John Dodds, Pine Grove, Bristol, and Kenneth Gratz, Tampa, Fla., who was a week-end guest at the Dodds home. Both boys attend the University of Pennsylvania.

It was about 11 o'clock yesterday morning when young Dodds and Gratz were sailing in the river, about opposite the Elks Home, well over on the Burlington Island side. The stiff wind prevented the forward speed of the boat and this prevented it being properly steered. The boat turned over and both boys were thrown into the water.

Members of the Moose Lodge saw the predicament of the pair from the Moose Home and called the Rescue Squad of the Blood Donors Association. The Rescue Squad of the Blood Donors Association launched their boat from the Moose Home and went to the rescue. Fulmer Gosline also saw the boys in the water and he went out in his boat, Gosline pulled in Dodds, while the Rescue Squad crew pulled in Gratz. Both boys were taken to the Elks Home from where they were in turn taken to the Dodds residence by Horace Schmidt.

The Rescue Squad boat was manned by Clifford Hagerman, Jr., William Commons, and Ellis Ratcliffe, Jr.
